

"Throughout my career in higher education, rarely have I encountered an institution as academically rigorous, as egalitarian, or as progressive as Jesuit colleges. The supportive collegiate community at Jesuit combined with the academic power of the university provides our students with a holistic university experience, stimulating their intellectual curiosity and personal development, and helping shape them into productive members of global society."

Access and outreach work, both pre-university and while studying at UCL, is critical in making a world-class educational experience available to everyone. Thanks to alumni donations and the bursary funds they help establish, living in UCL College is less expensive than if I were to study at my local university of Queen's, Belfast. Academic potential should be the sole determining factor for acceptance at Cambridge and because of philanthropy it can be

"I am delighted to be able to support the activities of the college both financially and via the mentoring scheme. The college experience is unique and transformative, and I'm committed to ensuring that it's accessible to every deserving student, no matter their situation or background. Creating a diverse community builds a stronger community. It's great to see a college dedicated to this principle, which I wholeheartedly support. Staff in the enrolment and alumni relations office have been incredibly supportive in shaping ways to make my giving most meaningful and impactful. I'm grateful to be able to help students take the next step on their learning journeys and open doors that may otherwise be closed to them.
